

PROFESSIONAL SYNOPSIS

Lloyd A. Myers, AIA has over thirty (30) years of experience in architecture, design management and planning. As a visionary and strategic planner, he brings a wealth of award-winning innovation and creativity to these disciplines. Lloyd's career commenced as an architectural intern with the award-winning firm of Perez Associates of New Orleans in 1981. Following completion of his professional licensure in 1985, Lloyd formed a planning and design firm with Urban Planner Robert Tannen which they operated from 1985 to 1988.

Prior to moving to Atlanta in 1989, Lloyd was recruited by The Rouse Company to manage design of 3 urban marketplaces in Florida, Louisiana and Georgia. Each development required a fresh look at our cities' struggling urban core and provided an integral venue for market and entertainment in a formerly neglected property. Regarding Riverwalk in New Orleans, the site was a half mile long site along the Mississippi River that was residual buildings from the 1984 World's Expo. Lloyd's former firm, Perez Assoc., was the lead design firm for this 6 month long exposition. (Riverwalk, Jax Landing, Underground Atlanta) as Tenant Design Manager.

From 1990 to 1998, LAM Design, Inc. continued to service the Atlanta community with Urban Design, Community Redevelopment and Retail Design projects.

Our firm developed a grounded approach to community planning, revitalization and redevelopment which embraced seven principles which result in "healthy communities" for ourselves, our children and our elders. These consensus-building workshops analyze a community based on:

1. Safe pedestrian and vehicular transportation
2. Stimulating through good design and maintenance
3. A sense of a larger family; an extended family-a village.
4. Accommodates the needs of its elderly members
5. Allows for free worship, provides solace & calmness; encourages physical wellness.
6. Provides good access to staple goods and services
7. Provides opportunities for education and business/gainful employment

Projects during these years included Atlanta University Center West Side Pedestrian Corridor System: a 6 mile promenade which connects three major mass transit stations to three Olympic venue sites and several historic urban neighborhoods as well as six historical African American Colleges and Universities.

Transportation-related retail and restaurant design received Lloyd's focus from 2000 to 2012 as his design teams designed 20 stores and restaurants including Sweet Georgia's Juke Joint, and airport restaurants Sojourner's Seafood, TGI Friday's, Coffee Beanery and Purple Leaf Café'.

Over the years, Lloyd's practice has taken on a user-friendly, forward-thinking approach to design and problem solving . "We value listening as the greatest contributor to good collaborative design." His approach is a transparent process which offers the Client as much access as he/she desires. Solution alternatives are well received and thoroughly explored in order to be certain that the final solution is the best solution.

Mr. Myers is a "hands-on" professional, who is actively involved in the design and management of his projects. He provides his services with integrity, sincerity, respect, and a keen business sense and commitment to excellence. In his work with public and private development teams, he has developed first-hand expertise in the cooperative effort needed to take a project from fruition to completion, and the logistics necessary to navigate a project through the planning, development, regulatory and permitting procedures.

His expertise in project management and his commitment to team excellence is evidenced by the following awards for The Promenade, a project involving the management of a team of nine design firms, a complex client group including public and private sector, and over $16 million dollars in construction:

1995 Award of Excellence for Urban Design and Community Participation
Georgia American Institute of Architects and the Department of Transportation.
